INCENDIARIES.—On Monday night a fire was kindled under one corner of Squire Clohan's office, in Centre Wheeling, by the same parties (as it is now supposed) that fired the stable near the Belmont mills. It was discovered, however, before any damage was done and extinguished without alarm.

We learn that the hay bales in the stable referred to, were cut and the hay scattered, besides other evidences of the incendiary origin of the fire. We trust that the perpetrators of this diabolizm may be detected and punished.
